

They Had the Billion-Dollar Law Firms. I Had AI—And I’m Getting Smarter Than All of Them

They’re backed by power, money, and influence.

The pharmaceutical company, the other respondents, and the legal firms protecting them have unlimited resources.

They pay for the most expensive AI models, elite attorneys, private consultants, and crisis teams trained to bury people like me.

And I’m still winning.

Not because I outspent them.

Not because I have connections.

But because I decided to use the one tool they never thought I’d master, AI.

They Thought I’d Be Overwhelmed. Instead, I Got More Dangerous.

When I was fired and misclassified, I didn’t even know the structure behind what happened.

They were routing payroll through ghost entities, dissolved companies that legally didn’t exist.

Law firms wouldn’t help me. HR ghosted me. Everyone told me I didn’t stand a chance.

But every night, I sat down and started asking questions:

- “What happens if a company pays workers through inactive LLCs?”
- “What motion do you file when representation is unclear in arbitration?”
- “What does the IRS do when shell company fraud is exposed?”

And every time, I got answers. I learned faster.

Not from some online course.

From a machine I used like a weapon: ChatGPT.

This Isn’t Just a Tool. I Made It My Tactical Advantage

I don’t ask AI to write for me.

I speak my thoughts. My logic. My analysis. My instincts.

I dump long voice notes and say:

“Make this into legal language.”

“Say it like I’m filing it in court.”

“Make it persuasive. Powerful. Unshakable.”

And it does. Not because I’m copying, but because I’m feeding it real substance.

Real evidence. Real strategy. Real pain.

I’m not asking AI to replace my brain.

I’m using it to refine it, to become more intelligent than the entire legal structure designed to shut me up.

They Have $2,000-an-Hour Lawyers and Corporate AI Models

Let’s be real. They’re not writing anything by hand either.

They’re using elite GPT-4 Enterprise contracts.

Legal research tools like CoCounsel, Harvey AI, and proprietary Palantir-style models.

They’re running simulations, behavioral sentiment tools, and automated risk calculators to decide how to deal with me.

But I’m doing the same thing, with public tools, no budget, and better instincts.

They use AI to hide the truth.

I use it to expose it.

They use AI to silence.

I use it to speak louder than they ever thought I could.

They’ve Got PR Firms. I’ve Got Proof.

After I filed with the IRS, after I named over 100 entities tied to fraud, after I tracked every layer of this shell structure—Sanofi didn’t answer.

They didn’t deny.

They launched a $20 billion PR stunt to distract the public.

They’re using money to protect their image.

I’m using AI to protect the truth.

And every day, I get smarter.

I don’t just file. I study.

I don't just talk. I research.

I don't just ask questions. I learn the answers better than the lawyers who said I couldn't do this.

I Am What Happens When the System Underestimates the Wrong Person

They built this legal machine assuming people like me wouldn't fight.

That we wouldn't know how.

That without law degrees and six-figure firms, we'd stay quiet.

But I broke through.

I'm not just in arbitration.

I'm in a $15 billion fight against global powerhouses, and I'm standing my ground.

With AI.

With discipline.

With intelligence they can't buy, because it's fueled by truth, not billable hours.

This Isn't the Future of Law. This Is the Future of Resistance.

They used AI to control the system.

I used AI to understand it—and now I'm dismantling it piece by piece.

I'm not afraid of the hate.

I'm not afraid of the system.

I'm not afraid of billionaires.

Because I've learned more in six months with AI than most lawyers learn in six years.

And the more they try to bury me...

the more intelligent I become.

Sincerely

Jorden Hollingsworth
